
Author's Guide for Submission of Manuscripts

Asian Agri-History, an international quarterly journal, is being published in English by the Asian Agri-History Foundation to promote understanding of all historical aspects of the development of agriculture in Asia from the earliest known records until the early 20th century. Contributions may be research-based, observational, or theoretical, and may concern terrestrial or aquatic; and managed or natural agroecosystems. Asian Agri-History will also consider contributions based on original research, both full-length papers and short communications, but will adopt a flexible policy regarding other kinds of submissions, such as translations of old documents, mini-reviews, scholarly views, and commentaries. All authors must be subscribers to Asian Agri-History journal.

Asian Agri-History journal has a broad-based outlook. It will include the history of the following subjects:

- Agricultural economics and sociology
- Agricultural education
- Agricultural engineering and farm implements
- Agroastronomy and farmers' beliefs
- Agroclimatology
- Agroforestry
- Agrogeography
- Animal husbandry: livestock, poultry, fishery, aquaculture, apiculture, and sericulture
- Crop diversity and cropping systems
- Farm management and farming systems

- Organic and conservation agriculture
- Origin and spread of crops
- Plant protection
- Postharvest management of produce
- Seed quality and storage
- Soil health and fertility
- Sustainable agriculture practices
- Useful plants
- Water harvesting and irrigation
- Women in agriculture
- Others: agricultural libraries; botanical gardens; biographies of leaders in agriculture; interviews with veteran farmers (75 years and above); traditional agricultural products and uses

General

Manuscripts in English should be submitted as MS Word documents through email or on a CD along with one hard copy to:

Editors

Asian Agri-History Foundation
47 ICRISAT Colony-I
Brig. Sayeed Road
Secunderabad 500009
Telangana, India
(email: asianagrihistory94@gmail.com)

Format

All manuscripts should be in 1.5 line spacing on A4 size paper, with margins of at least 3 cm all around. The title page should contain: 1. Title (maximum 100 characters); 2. Name(s) of author(s); 3. Full postal address(es); 4. Name and address

(also telephone number and email ID) of the corresponding author; 5. Category of article (Full-length paper, Short communication, Translation of old document, Mini-review, Scholarly view, or Commentary); 6. Subject heading.

Full-length papers and Short communications reporting original research should be structured in the following order: title page (as given earlier), abstract for Full-length papers (not more than 250 words), introduction, body, discussion, acknowledgments, references, tables, figure legends, and figures. Tables and figures should be on separate pages, in upright position and not 'landscape'. Full-length papers should not exceed 20 typed pages.

The above format may be varied for Translations of old documents, Mini-reviews, Scholarly views, and Commentaries. All articles, however, must contain the title page. Articles treating a defined specialist subject of historical importance will be considered as Mini-reviews and should not exceed 20 typed pages. Scholarly views are speculative and provocative opinions. Commentaries are comments on any of the publications of the Asian Agri-History Foundation, supplementing or questioning the published contents. All articles, except Short communications, Scholarly views, and Commentaries, should be preceded by an informative abstract, which should not exceed 250 words.

Reflections of leaders are invited articles intended to document the events of the life of leaders in agriculture, for the benefit of generations to follow. Biographies of leaders in agriculture are also accepted.

Viewpoint will include views on a specific subject related to the history of Asian agriculture. Communications should not exceed two pages.

Articles or extracts from old, rare documents in English can also be submitted along with permission (if required) for reproduction. Such articles will be published as Selected articles, Selected notes, or Agri-history kaleidoscope. New books on ancient agriculture will be considered for review, which will be published as Book review.

Letters to the editor will include views on topics related to Asian Agri-History. Communications should not exceed one page.

Figures

All articles must include one or more figures. Computer generated illustrations should be scanned at high resolution and submitted preferably as .tif or .jpeg files on CD or through email.

References

All references should be cited in the text by last name of the author(s) with the year of publication [e.g., Mishra (1998); or (Mondal and Pal, 1999)]. When there are more than two authors, use the first author followed by et al. [e.g., Shahare et al. (2002) or (Shahare et al., 2002)]. The references should be listed in alphabetical order at the end of the article. Journal titles must be in full, not abbreviated. The following examples provide more detailed guidance.

Thesis

Mishra SK. 1998. Weather forecasting in almanacs relating to farming operations and its relevance in today's agriculture. PhD thesis, Institute of Agricultural Sciences, Banaras Hindu University, Varanasi, India. 257 pp.

Journal articles

Mondal SK and Pal DT. 1999. Mithun: Historical perspective. Asian Agri-History 3(4):245–260.

Shahare PU, Chougule BA, and Ubale SS. 2002. Soil salinity and reclamation efforts in pre-independent India. Asian Agri-History 6(3):243–260.

Book chapter

Baya DS. 2000. Agriculture and animal husbandry in ancient India: The Jaina view.

In: Ancient and Medieval History of Indian Agriculture and its Relevance to Sustainable Agriculture in the 21st Century: Proceedings of the Summer School, 28 May–17 June 1999, Rajasthan College of Agriculture, Udaipur, India (Choudhary SL, Sharma GS, and Nene YL, eds.). Rajasthan College of Agriculture, Udaipur, Rajasthan, India. pp. 120–126.

Book

Falvey L. 2000. Thai Agriculture: Golden Cradle of Millennia. Kasetsart University Press, Bangkok, Thailand. 460 pp.

Online source

The URL should be cited in the text and the complete citation should be listed.

Journal levies no page charge. The PDF file of the article will be sent to the corresponding author.

Asian Agri-History Foundation Policy on the copyright of publications

Asian Agri-History Foundation (AAHF) is a non-profit, charitable Trust that was established in 1994 to facilitate dissemination of information on agri-history of Asia and thereby, to promote research on sustainable agriculture. We believe that the ancient and medieval knowledge of agriculture that we find should be widely disseminated with ease to promote sustainable agriculture. We have adopted following policies, accordingly, with regard to our publications.

1. Journal: Asian Agri-History

The knowledge is shared. Author of any unpublished article will surrender the copyright to the Publisher (AAHF) at the time of submission for acceptance and publication. Written permission to reproduce articles can be sought from AAHF.

2. Agri-History Bulletins, Proceedings, and Books

The Bulletins, Proceedings, and Books, published by AAHF, involve considerable effort by the AAHF through searching for suitable manuscripts, translating them into English, requesting scientists to write commentary on the contents, preparing index, and printing them with utmost care to maintain international standards. Therefore, the AAHF claims copyright of these Bulletins, Proceedings, and Books mainly to prevent misuse. Bona fide persons, who seek permission to reproduce parts from these publications, are given permission with a token fee (waived in certain cases).

3. Agri-History Reports

These are semi-formal publications of the AAHF. Permission to reproduce parts of these reports must be sought from the AAHF.